MEMORANDUM
TO THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS
IN REGARD TO APPLICANTS’ OBSERVATIONS ON THE EXECUTION OF THE JUDGMENTS OF THE EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS FROM THE NORTH CAUCASUS
SUBMITTED BY THE RUSSIAN JUSTICE INITIATIVE, 25 AUGUST 2010

Introduction

1. The Russian Justice Initiative (RJI) is submitting these observations to the Committee of Ministers (the Committee) in accordance with Rule 9 of the Committee of Ministers’ Rules for consideration during the Committee’s 1092 DH Meeting on 14-16 September 2010. They are copied to the Department for the Execution of Judgments of the European Court of Human Rights as well as to the Committee on Legal Affairs and Human Rights of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe.

2. The Russian Justice Initiative is a Dutch non-governmental organization based in Russia which as of June 2010 was representing Applicants in 88 out of 145 cases decided to date concerning grave violations of the European Convention on Human Rights in the North Caucasus. We note at the outset, as the Applicants’ representatives, that in none of the cases listed below has the Government to date taken meaningful steps, apart from the prompt payment of the Court’s designated monetary awards, to fully comply with the judgments of the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) insofar as individual measures are concerned:

3. This document will provide the Committee with new information in the form of an overview of the correspondence with the Russian authorities regarding individual measures in cases stemming from judgments which became final more recently and on which RJI has not yet reported to the Committee (cases 16-29 from the above list). Sections A and B provide an update on correspondence in cases previously brought to the Committee’s attention in earlier submissions (cases 1-15 from the above list). In both categories of cases it will be demonstrated that the defects in the investigation indicated by the ECtHR have not been remedied. Section D of the present submission indicates certain crucial – and as yet unanswered – questions regarding the progress of investigations in cases 2, 4, 12 and 17-29 from the above list, which the Applicants urge the Committee to bring to the immediate attention of the Russian delegation. Sections E and F present the concluding remarks of the Applicants and their representatives.

A. Information on cases 1, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 15 from the above list

4. The Applicants refer to their previous submissions concerning the above cases¹ and submit that no new information or correspondence has been forthcoming in these cases from the Russian authorities since the time of their last submissions. The Applicants reiterate the lack, to the extent of their knowledge, of a substantive undertaking of appropriate individual measures in these cases to date.

B. Information on cases 2, 4 and 12 from the above list: Imakayeva v. Russia (no. 7615/02), Akhmadova

¹ Including submissions of 2 June 2007 in the cases Bazorkina v. Russia and Estamiriva and Others Russia; of 28 September 2007 in the cases Luluyev and Others v. Russia, Imakayeva v. Russia, Chitayev and Chitayev v. Russia; and of 4 May 2009 in 19 cases.
5. On 27 May 2009 the Shali Inter-District Investigating Department of the Chechen Republic, in reply to RJI’s letter of 30 April 2009, informed RJI that its letter had been forwarded to the Special Investigating Unit within the Directorate of the Investigative Committee of the Chechen Republic (the SIU). In the same letter RJI was informed that the criminal case No 36125 of 23 March 2008 (outgoing No 396-216/2-3-125д-08) had been forwarded to the Referent of the Unit of Procedural Control No 2 within the Main Territorial Office of the Investigative Committee of the Chechen Republic (the Unit of Procedural Control № 2). The Applicants’ representatives have received no further information since then of any procedural steps taken or of the status of the domestic investigation, other than the written refusals indicated below to a request to consolidate case No 36125 with another case exhibiting similar factual circumstances.

6. On 3 July 2009 the Applicant requested the Directorate of the Investigative Committee of the Chechen Republic (the Directorate of the IC of the Chechen Republic) to consolidate the criminal investigation in her case (No 36125) with the investigation in case No 59176, which concerns the enforced disappearance of the Applicants’ relatives in the case Utsayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 29133/03): Islam Utsaev, Movsar Taisumov, Idris Abdulazimov and Masud Tovmerzayev. This request was motivated by the fact that the detention of the Applicants’ relatives in both cases was, according to evidence contained in the domestic case files and also cited by the European Court, carried out by the same troops on the same day, using the same vehicles.

7. On 14 July 2009 the Directorate of the IC of the Chechen Republic informed the Applicants that since the investigation materials in case No 59176 had been transferred to the Investigative Committee of the Russian Federation, it was unable to reply to the Applicants’ motion on substance. The Applicants were informed that they would receive a reply on the merits of their motion after the case materials were returned to the Directorate of the IC of the Chechen Republic.

8. On 4 December 2009 the Applicants lodged a complaint with the Directorate of the IC of the Chechen Republic, to the effect that, inter alia, they had not yet received any response on the substance of their motion lodged on 14 July 2009.

10. On 21 December 2009 the Head of the Unit of Procedural Control № 2 Mr. Markovsky V.N. dismissed the Applicants’ complaint on substance on the grounds that the investigative authorities had not succeeded in identifying the perpetrators in both criminal cases (No 36125 and No 59176) and that there was not enough evidence of the involvement of the same group of persons in both crimes.9

framework of that investigation. In particular, the investigation had tried to establish the whereabouts of the military servicemen who at the time of the events in question served at the Military Commander's Office of the Shali district of the Chechen Republic and who allegedly took part in the military operation of 2 June 2002 in the village of Novye-Atagi, subsequent to which the Applicants’ relatives had disappeared. The investigation had also tried to identify the owners of the APCs with hull numbers “569”, “1252”, “889” and a UAZ all-terrain car with partially visible number “344”. The investigation had also sent inquiries to the Central Archives of various law enforcement agencies and questioned all the eye-witnesses to the crime. However, none of the above measures had led to the identification and prosecution of the perpetrators.13

16. The Applicants also refer to their unsuccessful attempts to consolidate the investigation in their case with the investigation in the case of Imakayeva v. Russia (no. 7615/02).14

17. The Applicants’ representatives have not been made aware of any further progress made in the domestic investigation.

forwarded for further examination to the Investigative Committee of the Russian Federation, where it has remained since then.

39. Given the above circumstances, the Directorate of the IC of the Chechen Republic informed RJI of its decision to deny the Applicants and their representatives access to the case materials.

On 30 April 2010 the Directorate of the IC of the Chechen Republic informed RJI that the investigation into the Applicants’ case had been suspended on account of a failure to identify persons to be charged with the offence and that the case materials had been forwarded for further examination to the Investigative Committee of the Russian Federation.

45. On 14 May 2010, in reply to RJI’s letter of 18 February 2010, the Military Prosecutor’s Office of the NCMD and UGA informed RJI that its letter regarding the Applicants’ case No 34/00/0010-03 had been forwarded to the Military Investigating Department of the NCMD and UGA.35

46. On 18 May 2010 the Military Investigating Department of the NCMD and UGA informed RJI that, after the judgment of the ECtHR, the Applicants’ case had been repeatedly suspended and re-opened. RJI was informed that after having reviewed all possible versions of the circumstances of the crime and after having undertaken all possible measures to identify the perpetrators, the investigation had nevertheless failed to establish the involvement of military personnel in the crime committed against the Applicants’ relatives.

47. RJI was informed that the case was last suspended on 3 May 2010 on account of a failure to identify persons to be charged with the offence. Lastly, it was stated that even after the suspension of the investigation, the authorities continued to undertake operational search measures. However, no explicit mention was made of the kind of measures undertaken by the authorities.36

D. Questions Regarding the Progress of Domestic Investigations in cases 2, 4, 12, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29 from the above list

48. Given that the Applicants in the cases described above maintain grave concerns regarding the lack of meaningful progress in domestic investigations following the Court’s judgments, they wish to bring to the urgent attention of the Committee certain failings that continue to plague the domestic investigation in their cases, and to pose specific question regarding these failings, which, to their knowledge, have not yet been answered by the authorities responsible for the investigation in their cases.

49. The Applicants in the cases Imakayeva v. Russia (no. 7615/02) and Utsayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 29133/03) reiterate their concern over the continual and unjustified refusal of the authorities to recognise the connection between the crimes issues in these two cases. Indeed this refusal is particularly disturbing given the fact that in both cases the authorities possess evidence as to the identities of the perpetrators, which as indicated earlier,37 point to the same group of persons.

Questions:

a) Given the apparent availability of strong evidence that one of the victims38 in Imakayeva v Russia was last seen in the hands of military and security personnel,39 what steps have been taken to question the servicemen who were involved in the victim's detention?

b) Did the statements given by the servicemen regarding the victim's detention coincide or in any way recall the circumstances of the arrest and detention of the victims in the case _Utsayeva and Others v. Russia_ (no. 29133/03)?

c) Have the witnesses in both cases, _Imakayeva v. Russia_ (no. 7615/02) and _Utsayeva and Others v. Russia_ (no. 29133/03), been confronted by the authorities?

d) Have the authorities identified other witnesses who might possess any information about the victims’ fate?

50. In _Akhmadova and Sadulayeva v. Russia_ (no. 40464/02) the Applicants would like to draw the Committee’s attention to the following circumstances: despite the fact that by May 2001 it had already been established that Mr. Akhmadov had been detained by military or security personnel and that the case file had been transferred to the Military Prosecutor's Office responsible for the investigation of crimes committed by servicemen, the authorities continue to deny the involvement of the military and security personnel in the crimes in question.41

a) Have the authorities questioned any of the servicemen who carried out the operation in Argun and were involved in the detention of Mr. Akhmadov or his fellow detainees? If so, who exactly has been questioned by the authorities?

b) The European Court commented critically on the fact that the investigation into the abduction of Mr. Akhmadov had been inexplicably separated from an investigation into the abduction and subsequent murder of the other men detained on 12 March 2001 during the same security operation in Argun.43 Is the investigation into Mr. Akhmadov's abduction still being carried out separately following the Court’s decision?

c) Did the investigation into these events, including the finding of three bodies within the security perimeter of a military unit, produce any results which might have shed light on what had happened to Shamil Akhmadov, as the Court also queried?

51. In _Lyanova and Aliyeva v. Russia_ (no. 28440/03) the Applicants submit that despite the Court’s finding that a special operation conducted by agents of the state—more specifically, members of the _Pskov OMON_ together with the servicemen of _Obron-δ_45—led to the apprehension of the Applicants’ relatives, the authorities continue to deny the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question.\textsuperscript{46}

a) The Court has established that by March 2001 the investigating authorities had questioned numerous witnesses and gathered a considerable amount of information concerning the events of 28-29 June 2000. As a result, the authorities were faced with two conflicting versions of events: one provided by the Pskov OMON officers, and the other by servicemen from Obron-8. However, it appeared that no meaningful efforts had been made by the investigating authorities to address these discrepancies. Furthermore, it did not appear that any efforts had been made to identify the Obron-8 servicemen who had allegedly taken part in the operation. Finally, there was no information to indicate that the authorities ever attempted to reconcile the conflicting testimonies provided by the OMON officers and the Obron-8 servicemen.\textsuperscript{47} Have the authorities established the identities of the Obron-8 servicemen who allegedly took part in the operation? Have the authorities clarified the discrepancies between the versions of events provided by the Pskov OMON officers and the Obron-8 servicemen?

52. In Akhmadov and Others v. Russia (no. 21586/02) the Applicants submit that, despite the fact that the Russian authorities acknowledged that Amkhad Gekhayev and Zalina Mezhidova were killed by agents of the State as a result of intentional use of lethal force against them,\textsuperscript{48} the authorities have not officially established the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question, despite the strong evidence as to the identity of the servicemen involved in the incident.\textsuperscript{49}

a) Given the particularly strong evidence in this case confirming that the victims were attacked by agents of the state with the use of helicopters and given that the ECtHR established that the civilian authorities had sincerely attempted to promptly investigate the events of 27 October 2001 and to secure evidence concerning the incident\textsuperscript{50} (including the collection of fragments of bullets and casings from the scene of the incident; obtaining documents related to the combat mission of 27 October 2001; and, examining the weapons and ammunition from the servicemen involved in the incident) what steps have been taken to identify and to question the servicemen who took part in the military operation of 27 October 2001?

b) In view of the Applicants’ statements that the upper half of Zalina Mezhidova’s body was missing, was the cause of the victim’s death established by the forensic examination carried out by the authorities?\textsuperscript{51}

c) What were the grounds for the application of the amnesty act to Mr. Sochkov\textsuperscript{52} and have all the circumstances surrounding his involvement in the victims’ death been duly established and assessed, given that the Applicants’ relatives were not only killed, but also posthumously removed from the scene of the

d) What specific steps have been undertaken by the authorities to establish the whereabouts of Mr. Sochkov?54

53. In Askharova v. Russia (no. 13566/02) the Applicant points out that the ECtHR established the involvement of military personnel in the apprehension of the victim. The ECtHR also established several omissions committed by the authorities in the conduct of the investigation.55 The Applicant in this regard refers with particular concern to the authorities’ continuing denial of the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question.56

Questions:

a) Have the authorities ever inspected the crime scene or the place where the bodies of the five residents of Serzhen-Yurt were dumped after their apprehension by the same servicemen on 18 May 2001?57

b) Have the authorities identified the APC which was seen by witnesses at the time of the events?58

c) Have the authorities questioned the Shali Military Commander who had allegedly told the Applicant that her husband had been detained at the military commanders’ office for some time?59

54. In Nasukhanova and Others v. Russia (no. 5285/04) the Applicants refer to the Court’s finding that “…it was very unlikely that several military vehicles stolen by insurgents from the federal troops in the 1990s could have moved freely through Russian military checkpoints without being noticed. It thus finds that the fact that a large group of armed men in uniform travelling in the APCs and the Ural vehicles arrived in the village of Pervomayskaya at 3 a.m. strongly supports the applicants’ assertion that these were State servicemen”.60

a) Given that it was established by the District Prosecutor’s Office in 2005 that there had been certain defects in the investigation, and that certain unspecified investigative measures had not been taken promptly, leading to the resumption of the proceedings, have the authorities eliminated the detected shortcomings?61

55. In the case of Zakriyeva and Others v. Russia (no. 20583/04) the ECtHR did not attribute responsibility for the unlawful acts to the Russian authorities. However, the Court noted that a number of essential investigative measures had either been delayed or had not been taken at all.

Questions:

a) Have the authorities established whether an identity check had been carried out at the bus stop near the dam and, if so, have they established which State agency was in control of this area, in particular given that a number of witnesses confirmed that they had seen the identity check being conducted at the bus stop?

b) If the above has been established, has the identity of the person involved in carrying out the identity check been determined, and have the investigative authorities ensured the participation of the state agents implicated in the crime in the investigation of the Applicants’ case?

56. In the case Zaurbekova and Zaurbekova v. Russia (no. 27183/03), despite the ECtHR’s finding that Isa Zaurbekov’s death should be attributed to the respondent State, the authorities continue to deny the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question.

Questions:

a) Have the authorities interviewed the servicemen from a nearby checkpoint, as was suggested by the Applicant?

b) Have the authorities established whether any units of the federal armed forces or security agencies were stationed in the area where the second Applicant and her brother lived and, if so, which ones?

57. In Khaydayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 1848/04) the Applicants refer to the fact that the Government has admitted that the victims were detained on 9 June 2002\textsuperscript{71} and to the ECtHR’s finding that on 9 June 2002 the victims were apprehended by State servicemen and that they must be presumed dead following their unacknowledged detention.\textsuperscript{72} However, the authorities continue to deny the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question.\textsuperscript{73}

Questions:

a) Given the particularly strong evidence in this case indicating that on 9 June 2002 the servicemen at the checkpoint stopped a white VAZ 21061 and apprehended five persons in the car, have the authorities established which military units and which individual servicemen were involved in the apprehension?\textsuperscript{74}

b) Have the authorities established to which units the vehicles in which the Applicants’ relatives were taken away belonged?\textsuperscript{75}

c) Have the authorities questioned the servicemen in charge of the special operation, apart from Mr. Davidov A.G. and Mr. Lokhavitsky (“D” and “L” in the Court’s judgment), who were identified by the Applicants themselves?\textsuperscript{76}

58. The Applicants in the case Bantayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 20727/04) submit that despite the ECtHR’s finding that the victims must be presumed dead following their unacknowledged detention by State servicemen,\textsuperscript{77} the authorities continue to deny the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question.\textsuperscript{78}

a) Have the authorities identified and questioned the Russian federal servicemen who were manning the checkpoints in the village of Komsomolskoye on the night of abduction?\textsuperscript{79}

d) Have the authorities established whether any special operations had been carried out in the village of Komsomolskoye on the night in question?

e) Have the authorities identified and questioned the servicemen who carried out the operation in the village of Komsomolskoye and could have been involved in the detention of the victims?

59. The Applicants in the case Elsiyev and Others v. Russia (no. 21816/03) note that it was established by the ECtHR that the victims must be presumed dead following their unacknowledged detention by State servicemen. Yet to date the investigation has not officially established the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question, despite the available evidence as to the identities of the commanding officers and the servicemen who carried out the detentions in question.

Questions:
a) Have the authorities questioned either the commanding officers, in particular General Studenikin, or the servicemen of the military and law-enforcement units involved in the special operation during the course of which the Applicants relatives disappeared, especially given that the identities of federal servicemen in question had been identified by the District Prosecutor’s Office within the first days of the investigation and were cited by the European Court in its judgment?
b) Have the authorities identified and questioned the servicemen who had used the “AvtoZak” vehicle in which the victims were transported to the filtration camp, which belonged to the Ministry of Justice?

60. The Applicants in the case Dokuyev and Others v. Russia (no. 6704/03) submit that the ECtHR found that the fact that a large group of armed men in uniform, equipped with military vehicles and able to move freely through military roadblocks, proceeded to apprehend two persons at their home in a town area, strongly supported the Applicants’ allegation that those men were State servicemen. However, the authorities continue to deny the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question.

Questions:
a) Have the authorities searched the crime scene and the place where the body of the first applicant was

Russia* (no. 27244/03) the Applicants submit that despite the fact that the Court established that on 7 November 2002 Saydi Malsagov was apprehended by State servicemen and that he must be presumed dead following his unacknowledged detention,\(^{91}\) the authorities continue to deny the involvement of military and security personnel in the crime in question.\(^{92}\)

E. Concluding General Observations of the Applicants and their representatives

63. With regard to the foregoing overview of the correspondence between the Applicants’ representatives and the Russian authorities regarding progress in their cases on the domestic level following a judgment of the ECtHR, the Applicants wish to draw the Committee’s urgent attention to the following:

\(^{90}\) Dokuyev and Others v. Russia (6704/03), para 92.

\(^{91}\) Malsagova and Others v. Russia (no. 27244/03), para 113.

\(^{95}\) See paras 46, 47 above.

\(^{96}\) Israilova and Others v. Russia (no. 4571/04), para 131.

\(^{97}\) Israilova and Others v. Russia (no. 4571/04), para 131.

\(^{98}\) Israilova and Others v. Russia (no. 4571/04), para 131.
(i) Despite the fact that the overall lack of progress with regard to enforcement of the Court’s decisions in cases 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 from the above list has already been reported to the Committee, and presumably brought to the attention of the Russian Government, the Applicants’ representatives reiterate that information on the vast majority of these cases either remains unavailable or has not been communicated to the Applicants. Even in cases in which certain relevant measures may have been undertaken since the delivery of the Court’s judgment, they are as a general rule ineffectual and give no cause to infer progress in practice; indeed the majority of such measures are merely a continuation of the kind of procedural stagnation inherent in the original investigation, such as repeated re-opening and suspension of case files or transfers to other departments;

(ii) It is apparent that the Respondent Government continues to rely on the practice of repeatedly “suspending” and “re-opening” domestic investigations in cases relating to actions of the security forces in the North Caucasus, a practice which the European Court has criticized many times. Indeed, in cases Utsayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 29133/03); Rasayev and Chankayeva v. Russia (no. 38003/03); Lyanova and Aliyeva v. Russia (no. 28440/03); Akmadov and Others v. Russia (no. 21586/02); Askharova v. Russia (no. 13566/02); Zakriyeva and Others v. Russia (no. 20583/04); Zaurbekova and Zaurbekova v. Russia (no. 27183/03); Khaydayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 1848/04); Bantayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 20727/04); Dokuyev and Others v. Russia (no. 6704/03); Malsagova and Others v. Russia (no. 27244/03); Israilova and Others v. Russia (no. 4571/04) the investigation has been repeatedly suspended and re-opened even after the decision of the ECtHR entered into force. In the Applicants’ view, such a practice flies in the face of the gravity of the violations found by the Court especially as no substantial progress can actually be discerned in the vast majority of such cases;

(iii) The authorities continue to deny the involvement of the military and security forces in the crimes committed against the Applicants. Thus, in cases Imakayeva v. Russia (no. 7615/02); Utsayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 29133/03); Lyanova and Aliyeva v. Russia (no. 28440/03); Akmadov and Others v. Russia (no. 21586/02); Askharova v. Russia (no. 13566/02); Zakriyeva and Others v. Russia (no. 20583/04); Zaurbekova and Zaurbekova v. Russia (no. 27183/03); Khaydayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 1848/04); Bantayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 20727/04); Dokuyev and Others v. Russia (no. 6704/03); Malsagova and Others v. Russia (no. 27244/03); Israilova and Others v. Russia (no. 4571/04) investigations have been suspended, sometimes repeatedly, on account of a failure to identify the perpetrators. Such decisions to suspend were made despite the ECtHR’s conclusions of state involvement in the crimes committed against the Applicants and their family members, and in fact are tantamount to a continuing denial of state involvement in the

101 See among other decisions of the Court: Zaurbekova and Zaurbekova v. Russia (no. 27183/03), 22 January 2009, para 85; Nenkayev and Others v. Russia (no. 13737/03), 28 May 2009, para 15; para 103.
violations found by the Court. These decisions have been taken on all levels of the domestic proceedings by all manner of officials: by the military and civilian investigative departments, as well as the prosecutor’s office in charge of the investigative proceedings;

(iv) It is noted with concern that the Applicants’ representatives have been provided only the most basic information by the investigative authorities concerning steps taken in the course of the investigation in all the above cases;

(v) Given the nature of the responses received by the Applicants’ representatives from the investigative authorities—which, if they are received at all, tend to be cursory and formalistic— it is very likely that the errors and omissions committed in the course of the original investigation, many of which were subsequently identified by the ECtHR, have not been addressed satisfactorily. Concerns regarding both the quantity and quality of information received are compounded by the authorities’ consistent refusal in most cases to allow victims and Applicants access to case materials, again often without providing adequate grounds for such denials. In the Applicants’ view, this continuing practice fails to satisfy the requirement of sufficient public scrutiny and of the right of victims to participate in proceedings which affect their rights, in violation of Convention and Russian law. The Applicants point out that their concerns in this regard have been repeatedly noted by the Secretariat and recall the apparent insistence of the Russian authorities that the situation in this regard has begun to change. The Applicants disagree with this assertion as it flatly contradicts the results of their concrete attempts both to inform themselves of the progress of investigations and to gain access to case materials;

(vi) The Applicants’ representatives wish to express particular concern over the emerging practice on the part of supervisory investigative authorities to declare “legal and reasonable” decisions made by investigators to suspend or to refuse to re-open investigation files. With reference to information provided by the Russian authorities, and noted in the Secretariat’s most recent update on Memorandum CM/Inf/DH(2008)33 of 27 May 2010, regarding the creation of the Special Supervising Unit (Unit of Procedural Control No 2) and on the role of the recently-created Special Investigating Unit (SIU), the Applicants submit in this context that these mechanisms, have had, in the vast majority of cases, no measurable impact on improving access to case files for victims or on improving investigatory tactics that are clearly deeply flawed. Furthermore, the Applicants submit that the manner in which they were informed of such supervisory decisions—via formalistic notification without any elaboration of the grounds for the decision—has merely added another layer of official denial of state involvement of the violations suffered.

F. Measures which should be taken by the Russian authorities

64. The Applicants in cases Estamirov and Others v. Russia (no. 60272/00); Imakayeva and Others v. Russia (no. 60272/00); Chitayev and Chitayev v. Russia (no. 59334/00); Akmadova and Sadulayeva v. Russia (no. 6844/02) submit that the authorities should take all necessary steps to investigate the circumstances of the violations suffered by their relatives, to establish the whereabouts of the victims, and to inform the Applicants and their representatives of the latest developments in the investigation of their cases.

65. The Applicants in cases Rasayev and Chankayeva v. Russia (no. 38003/03); Lyanova and Aliyeva v. Russia (no. 28440/03); Akmadov and Others v. Russia (no. 21586/02); Askharova v. Russia (no. 6704/03); Malsagova and Others v. Russia (no. 27244/03); Israilova and Others v. Russia (no. 4571/04) submit that the authorities should rectify the shortcomings of the domestic investigations in their cases as identified by the ECtHR and inform the Applicants and their representatives of the investigative steps taken to restore the Applicants’ rights.
